Our properties

South & West

The South and West regions of Scotland are renowned for majestic cliff-top castles, idyllic sandy beaches and glorious gardens. Culzean Castle is an iconic masterpiece that rises dramatically from the Ayrshire cliffs.. Opulent to the extreme there's no denying its owner, the Earl of Cassillis, loved wealth and status. In contrast, a visit to Weavers Cottage transports visitors back 200 years when hand-woven textiles were the pride of Scotland's weaving industry. Discover the process of making cloth on a working loom and dyed using plants from its garden. The cottage is home to the last working hand-loom still used to this day by specialist weavers.

The History of Tea

From £35 per person

Min 10/Max 15

90 Minutes

"Tea is one of the mainstays of civilisation in this country" writes George Orwell in 1946. But when and how did the British develop such an affinity for a drink that they had to travel halfway across the world to obtain? And how has tea time become such a staple of the British cultural identity?

Gladstone's Land cordially invites your clients to a very special tea party indeed. Our costumed storytellers share the fascinating story of tea over a cup of tea. Or two. Or three.

Inclusions:

- Guided tour of Gladstone's Land
- Exclusive use of the 'Green room'
- Tutored tastings of a variety of tea from around the world
- Use of elegant crockery

Music and Mischief

During their time at Kellie Castle, your clients can enjoy a private tour focusing on the 6th Earl of Kellie. Thomas Erskine, born in 1732 and also known as 'Fiddler Tam', was a notable musician and composer, and was famed as much for his rakish habits as his music. His lifestyle extended to founding a drinking club, as well as being a member of the 'Beggar's Benison' - an all-male club devoted to the 'celebration of male sexuality'.

Inclusions:

- Private tour of Kellie Castle
- Hear the music of 'Fiddler Tam'
- Welcome drink

A Newhailes Haunting

We invite your clients to join us on this spine-chilling tour of Newhailes House, built in 1686. This eerily majestic Palladian mansion house was home to the wealthy, influential and often infamous Dalrymple family for nearly 300 years. We'll divulge dark tales of the death, murder, scandal and heart ache that plagued the Dalrymple family for centuries, with many tragedies happening right within these very walls.

Inclusions:

- Exclusive use of Newhailes House out of hours
- Learn about different types of hauntings and hear about different paranormal incidents in the house

Available year- round on request

 From £50 per person  Min 10/Max 30

'Outlander' at Newhailes

Travel back in time with us as we explore Newhailes House during the height of Jacobite activity in Scotland. More than 250 years later Outlander began filming at Newhailes using the library and the dining room in Season 4 Episode 1 as the home of Mr Lillington. How did the NTS and the production company transform Newhailes into Mr Lillington's home, and how do we make a historic house work as a 21st century film set? Join us as we explore Outlander and 18th century Scotland on location!

Inclusions:

- Learn what Jacobite battles and skirmishes were waged around Newhailes
- Hear about the scenes that were filmed for 'Outlander'
- Sit at the same dining table as Claire and Jamie - a great photo opportunity!
