Culross Palace

Culross is Scotland's most complete example of a Burgh of the 17th and 18th centuries and certainly one of the most picturesque villages in Scotland. White-harled houses with red-tiled roofs line the steep cobbled streets which run from the market cross to the hilltop abbey. Your clients can visit Culross Palace and Gardens and explore the small rooms and connecting passageways, with wonderful painted ceilings, pine panelling and antique furniture. Culross was the location for a number of scenes of the TV series Outlander.

Hill of Tarvit Mansion & Garden

Hill of Tarvit was originally known as Wemyss Hall. In 1904, the new owner, Frederick Sharp, commissioned architect Robert Lorimer to transform the 17th-century house into a modern 20th-century mansion to display his amazing collection of fine art, porcelain and many other items. Today, Hill of Tarvit preserves a fascinating record of Edwardian life both upstairs and downstairs. It also has the only exclusively hickory golf course in the UK. Tee times are available to book from March to October. Hill of Tarvit Mansion is open Fri-Sun and the Gardens are open daily.

St Andrews Cathedral

The remains of St Andrews Cathedral, which was Scotland's largest cathedral and most magnificent church, show how impressive it used to be. The museum also houses an outstanding collection of early and later medieval sculptures and other relics found on the site, including the magnificent St Andrews Sarcophagus of Pictish date. Due to essential maintenance, the Museum is currently closed and sections of the graveyard are fenced off due to unstable gravestones. The grounds of the cathedral are open and are accessible free of charge.
