

Comunn Eachdraidh Nis

Comunn Eachdraidh Nis is a visitor centre in North Dell. The centre boasts an extensive archive which includes information on individual families from the area, photographs, documents, video, sound recordings and extracts from other published material. People come looking for ancestors and answers to their past, which they find in the vast genealogical archives and the cemetery records dating back to the early nineteen hundreds. The refurbished accredited museum depicts island life along with artefacts and equipment from days past.

Distance between Comunn Eachdraidh Nis and The Blackhouse Arnol is 16miles/25.8km

The Blackhouse, Arnol

The Blackhouse at Arnol is a traditional Lewis thatched house built around 1880 and gives visitors a special and authentic insight into island life. This traditional Lewis thatched house is fully furnished, complete with an attached barn, byre and stackyard. It was once the residence of a Hebridean crofting family and is preserved today almost as its last inhabitant left it, complete with a peat fire and open hearth. A furnished 1920s croft house is also open to view.

Pocket House Studio

Your clients can visit this ethical rug weaving studio and croft and try their hand at spinning, weaving and plant dyeing. Meet the rare and rescue sheep (including the three St Kilda breeds) that live here in a no-kill flock. The traditional Island croft grows their own foods as well as lots of natural dye plants. Sit at a traditional wooden loom and feel the threads that link us with the weavers that worked in the old weaving shed for generations. The owners share their island life over a Highland tea.

The Calanais Standing Stones

Let your clients walk among the megaliths at one of Scotland's most magnificent and best preserved Neolithic monuments. The Calanais Standing Stones, located on the west coast of Lewis and famous all over the world, are an extraordinary cross-shaped setting of stones erected 5,000 years ago. They predate England's famous Stonehenge monument, and were an important place for ritual activity for at least 2,000 years. Please note that the visitor centre is currently closed until 2026 for refurbishments which results in no facilities being available at the site.

Uist Wool

The spinning Mill was constructed in 2013 and houses a range of heritage machinery sourced by Uist Wool from Argyll and Yorkshire. The main parts of the Card may have their origins in the mid 19th Century but they're still working beautifully. Uist Wool is a new venture inspired by co-operative values. The original idea to build a new Mill in North Uist emerged from a collective will to find a fresh purpose for local fleece that would reconnect the community with their cultural heritage of wool working.
